

The Richard Savington Crampton Visiting Lectureship in Cardiovascular Medicine

Richard Savington Crampton, FACC, FAHA, FACP, born in Norwalk, Connecticut, on September 29, 1931, attended Princeton and received his medical degree from the University of Virginia in 1956. After training at St. Luke's, New York, and St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, he worked at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital; St. Luke's Hospital Center, New York; and Columbia University. In 1969, he joined the faculty at the University of Virginia and became Professor of Medicine in 1975 and Faculty Fellow at Brown College at Monroe Hill in 1986. At UVa, he directed the prehospital and hospital Coronary Care System, Heart Station, and Stress Lab. He served on the Emergency Medical Services Committee of the National Academy of Sciences and National Research Council. He cofounded the international long QT registry. He served on the Ethics Consultation Service from 1987 to 1990. He was appointed Professor Emeritus and Clinical Professor in 2000. He considers his greatest honor the J.E. Wood Teaching Award from the Fellows of the Cardiovascular Division at UVa.
